Camping and RV travel affordable, loaded with fun

Lake Huron Campground ‘Season Blast Off’ event on July 6 offers great activities only a short drive from metro Detroit

Port Sanilac, Mich.— An estimated 30 million RVers today don’t have to worry about losing their luggage at the airport, the stress of delayed flights or pricey dinner tabs. They experience comfortable and hassle-free vacations every time they travel—taking all the comforts of home with them. The RV lifestyle provides the freedom to go where you want, whenever you want ... for long vacations or quick weekend getaways.

Even with the high cost of gasoline, traveling by RV is more affordable than travel by personal car, airline or cruise ship. A study by PKF Consulting found that a family of four could spend 26 percent to 74 percent less when traveling by RV. An RV vacation remains the most economical trip you can take! The same study found that fuel prices would have to triple for RVing to become more expensive than other forms of travel.

There are over 1,000 campgrounds in Michigan, located at popular destinations, along major tourist routes and even near major metropolitan areas. For example, Lake Huron Campground in Port Sanilac, Mich., located in the thumb, is less than 90 miles from Detroit (even less from the northern or eastern suburbs). This brand new, 395-site, resort-style campground offers luxury amenities like a heated pool, clubhouse, banquet center, picnic shelters, laundry facilities, game room and a fitness center. Campers even have the convenience of a pizza café and ice cream shop, as well as a general store—all on-site.

In addition to the fun in nearby Lake Huron, the campground has a 20-acre private lake, with 46 waterfront sites, giving campers the opportunity to play on the sandy beach, swim, fish, or explore the lake by canoe, kayak or paddleboat. Don’t own an RV? No problem. The campground also has 25 premium log cabins.

You’ll never be bored at today’s modern campgrounds. Many resorts invest time, money and staff in planned activities, theme weekends and special events for its campers. Lake Huron Campground sets the standard for fun. This weekend, July 6-9, campers will enjoy a special “Season Blast Off” celebration, with an elaborate fireworks display, a carnival with giant inflatables, special guest speakers, live music, face painting, great food and more.
